Summary Information

Profile:

I am a loyal, caring, individual, keen to develop my career as a Nurse. Being a Nurse is my passion and I am motivated to continuously develop my skills and deliver a high standard of care. I am flexible, friendly, supportive with brilliant leadership skills, and I understand the importance of good 'team work' in order to success. I am dynamic, have a forward thinking approach and I am focused on providing safe, holistic and person-centred care. I have experience and ability to deal in stressful situations and environment in a calmly manner.

My experience in acute medical wards and a frailty admissions unit helped me to recognise people needs in a short time frame and delivering care rapidly and efficiently. I consider myself very responsible and organised, which is essential in my profession, and I am aware of the importance of Duty of Candour at work. I am very compassionate and hardworking, and I always try to share these values with my working colleagues, as patients and their families are experiencing one of the worse times in their lives and they deserve to be treated with respect, compassion and care.

I strongly agree with the value of "Look after your patients as you would like one of your close relatives to be looked after, maintaining their dignity and privacy". I am full of positive energy which I always try to share in personal life as well as in the working environment.
